

“Play gives children a chance to practice what they are learning.”

- Fred Rogers

Children around the world create and play games. Games help children understand how to follow rules, negotiate rules, set goals, compete with good sportsmanship, and collaborate with team members.

Research in child development provides evidence that games promote key social and emotional skills that help children grow up to be healthy and successful adults.

We invite you to explore our exhibits, designed to inspire a life-long love of learning and nurture creativity through play-based activities.
